

00:22:08 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): Hi folks, welcome! I'll be posting some info soon here

00:32:40 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): Welcome to Warm, Fullblooded Life, a Short Course on from the Writers' Annex and the Community of Writers. My name is Hunter Jones.

CHAT: We are hoping that the chat can stay limited to questions in the first half. We're keeping it open to all comments, but hoping to keep the conversation minimal until we get to the second half. Feel free to ask questions as you like. Once we get to the second half we will invite more open conversation in the chat. Thank you!

00:32:55 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): CREDITS:

The intro music is Silent O Moyle by Mary O'Hara

TECHNICAL ISSUES: Troubleshooting support is on the Headquarters Page, including support phone numbers.

00:33:12 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): CHAT: Please use the chat as you'd like. We ask that you remain respectful and kind, and refrain from combative or argumentative messages. Important info will be provided in the chat at the beginning and at the end of each segment. In the first half, please use the chat for questions only.

00:33:24 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): CLOSED CAPTIONING: To turn on closed captions, click on the button at the bottom of your window. If you don't see an option to turn on captions, you may need to click the three dots in the lower right-hand corner of your screen to expand the menu. If it is still not there, you may have an older version of zoom. A link to update to the latest version of the zoom desktop client is on the Headquarters Page

00:33:45 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): TO ASK A QUESTION: If you want to ask a question, type QUESTION: And then your question after it. Naturally, Peter won't be able to address every question.

You can also use the Q&A feature if you prefer.

00:33:48 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): THE HEADQUARTERS PAGE: Remember the Headquarters Page will be the go-to website for this course. It is our hub. All updates, links, course materials, handouts, and other resources will be posted there each week. RECORDINGS: These sessions will be recorded, and will be available for later viewing by registered participants for 30 days following the final session.

00:33:57 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): STRUCTURE: The first portion of each session will feature Peter moving through this week's reading with discussion and illumination; after a ten-minute break, he will spend the second portion of the course working with questions from the chat, and covering anything he didn't get to in the first half. This structure may vary week to week depending on the readings.

VIRTUAL HOUSES: Toward the end of each session, the Virtual Houses will open. If you would like to keep the conversation going, stick around and we will send you to a virtual house.

00:34:48 Hunter Jones (Community of Writers): Looks like the video will survive to the end this week!

01:00:02 Roger Soffer: QUESTION for later: I have a meta concept that I would like to have dispelled or encouraged! Yes, people talk about the parodying of writing styles, and the evolution of writing styles in the maternity ward, and the comedy of it, but it ASLO strikes me that in the whole book (er, up to what I've read) is him moving through different consciousnesses as those consciousnesses are expressed through language. From Stephen's early highly internal cognitive perception, to the "literal" telling of plotty stories... and all the variants between, including Bloom's pedantic, searching lostness and efforts to codify experience. Like he's Wim Wenders' Wings Of Desire, floating not just through people's thoughts, but their deeper consciousnesses... that, weirdly, always weirdly to me, co-exist, simultaneously, here sliced via a single day. Crazy question?

01:39:12 Kate's iPhone: This is just a comment on the background material. I finally had a chance to watch the video interview with Edna O'Brien and also Gerald Mannix Flynn. The latter talked so compellingly about the rigidity of Ireland, the loss of rights imposed on those perceived to have done moral wrong or being morally wrong in even small ways. He describes a very cold and unforgiving people. I do see that in the novel. There are lots of keystone cop-like things that happen that are humorous etc. But I'm wondering if all of it really is humor against the darkness—language play to stay alive. Because maybe you really are stuck in a place or a circumstance, but the thing that's not stuck is the play of the mind. This is interesting to me. Maybe this is why the book is hallucinating. It's like when people get to that lowest level of despair and they start swinging wildly with jokes and language because nothing really matters anymore. Why not put yourself in the context of a play? Funny people often are often in despair. Sayin'

01:47:27 Shelby Kinney-Lang: QUESTION: Okay so as to whether this is "happening" or "not happening," what do we think about this question for any piece of fiction? I think Joyce is playing a very funny trick on us, or a fiction writer's meta-fictional trick, e.g. by asking us to think of this as a play, it is happening in the sense that these are supposed to be imagined as actual actors who are actually present on stage; and I guess when it comes to things like camels and the dead father, why not? It's all words on a page! There is no Bloom per se. Like reality bends and expands here within the fictional world, or the text asks us to believe or to imagine that it bends and expands here, in a way that points to the entire farce of fiction itself: that we're sitting for hours at time, reading words on a page, hallucinating.
